

Content is created and driven to site. Aside from structural elements, everything is accessible to user and great efforts are made to make it easy to find.

Like life, some people can see some of me. But there is a whole other internal experience that is not accessible without my explicit permission and participation.

